THE NAVARRO FLATS CASE.

TESTIMONY GIVEN BY J. J. M'COM'3.

HIS RELATIONS WITH MR, DE NAVARRO-THE SUMS ADVANCED BY HIM TO THE LATTER.

ADVANCED BY HIM TO THE LATTER.

J. J. McComb was at Hamilton Cole's office again yesterday, and with the sid of his counset, General Thomas H. Hubbard, continued to show further cause why he should be permitted to foreclose on the Navarro Fluts for the two million dollars and mere which the company that built them owes to him. George H. Adams was present as the representative of the tenants of these costly apartments, and Almond Goodwin looked out for the interests of Jose de Navarro, or the Central Park Building Company.

Mr. McComb stroked his close-cut gray beard and lowered his bushy eyebrows as General Hubbard resumed his examination with a particularly involved question as to the point where the millionaire contractor's testimony ended at the last sitting before Referee Cole. The stenographer came to the rescue with his notes, and then Mr. McComb, taking out of his various pockets any number of documents in blue and

Cole. The stenographer came to the rescue with its notes, and then Mr. McComb, taking out of his various pockets any number of documents in blue and yellow envelopes and piling them in his lap, ran oft a list of the large sums that he had advanced for the erection of the Navarro buildings. He had a conversation with Mr. de Navarro, he said, on November 2, 1883. This was the first time he had noticed any irregularity in the proceedings, Mr. de Navarro having everything in his own hands and paying everything by personal check. Mr. de Navarro then told him that he was personally liable with himself for all the contractor's debts. The witness had submitted the matter to counsel and found that this was so, and he reminded Mr. de Navarro of the conditions under which he had made his subscription. Mr. de Navarro had assured him that he would not, under any circumstances, be involved for more than his subscription, and as he was then involved for more he positively decided having any him there and there "said Mr. McComb."

THE RAG-DISINFECTING COMPANY. MR. BARTLETT DENIES ALL CHARGES OF FRAUD

end of the case he would direct a verdict in their favor. Theodore Bartow, jr., an importer of Japanese rags, testined for the defence that he sold some of the rags in question before they arrived from Japan. He understood that they were rejected afterwards by the persons to whom they were sold. A question as to the reason of this was ruled out.

Edward B. Bartlett, senior member of the firm of E. B. Bartlett & Co., then took the stand. He said that he was a director in the Paper Stock Disinfectant Company. He was a stockholder and owned $40,000 worth of stock at first. He emphatically denied all charges of fraud and conspiracy and asserted that he had never used his influence directly or indirectly in inducing the Government to give the work to his company. When he became a director of the company he received $10,000 of stock in addition. He said he owned the Baltic stores and other United States bounded warehouses and described the bonded warehouse system. After he became a director of the disinfecting company his firm entered into an agreement with the company in February, 1885, which continued until August 1 of that year. He denied specifically all the material allegations in the complaint. About 25,000 bales of rags were disinfected in 1885 by the company's process. He said:

"I never vaed my influence directly or indirectly in getting the Government to give the company, the disinfecting of the rags," Cross-examined he said that the $40,000 worth of stock was given to him by Sammel W. Parker when the witness joined the company. For furnishing store-houses, tracking and disinfecting rags E. B. Bartlett & Co. charged $150 a ton. Being asked whether the company had not now entirely disappeared the witness said it had not and that it had an office in the Temple Court Building, but its machinery was in the possession of Bartlett & Co., who held it for the Disinfectant Compony.

Q-Do you know a gentleman named Thomas C. Piatt! A. -Yes, sir. I have know him a number of years.

The counsel for the defendants objected to dragging into the case a gentleman so prominent as Mr. Platt, but the objection was overruisel. The witness said he had talked with Mr. Platt and with Dr. Smith about the rag disinfecting process and had written a letter to the Treasury Department about the matter. The witness said that he had gone to Washington with Silas B. Dutcher to see the Treasury officials. Mr. Dutcher did the talking Mr. Dutcher was employed by him. He paid him an annual salary. He looked after the interests of the witness in Albany and Washington and New-York. The witness said that Mr. Dutcher had gone to the Legislature for him. He talked with members of the Legislature about "atrike" bills.

"What are they I" asked Congressman Cockran, counsel for the plaintiffs.

"I think you know a great deal more about them than I do," was the answer. The witness said that ke went to Washington because he had anxiety for the health of the community. He once went to Philadelphia to ask the Hoalth Board there to adopt the disinfecting process. The disinfecting machinery was now in the possession of Martin C. Herry, a clerk for the witness.

The trial will be resumed next Monsay,

The inquiry into the mental condition of Arthur S. Austin was continued yesterday. Austin on the witness stand behaved in a rational manner and gave a detailed statement of the curious career coherently and intelligently. He told of his removal from Thelses, Vt., in 1882, to Alabama, where he sived until the beginning of the present year. He explained his eccentric conduct while in this city by saying that it was caused by the influence of liquor and atrong medicines. At the time that he had a vision in which he seemed to be taken up to Heaven and brought back again to earth he was just recovering from a serious liness. He was saked about his giving cigars away to people in the Hoffman House, and laughlingly replied that, while he had found the custom a trifle unusual in this community, he hardly thought it warranted a suspicion of insanity. He had been arrested once before on an allecation that he was insane at Chicopec. Mass. Ex-Governor Robinson, his wife's counsel, had made persistent efforts to have him confined in an asylung and it was on this account that he had spoken of Mr. Robinson as he had.

The case was adjourned before his examination was finished, and will be resumed to-day at 4 p. m.

POLES IN WEST SEVENTY-THIRD-ST.

Argument was heard by Justice Donohue in the Supreme Court, Chambers, yesterday on the motion to continue the injunction restraining the Metropolitan Telephone and Telegraph Company from erecting poles and stringing wires in West Seventy-third-st., between West End-ave, and the Grand Boulevard. Ex-Judge William G. Choate, in behalf of W. E. Dodge Stokes, the Rev. Dr. Armiston, William J. Merritt, Jacob Lawson, F. M. Tenike and other property-owners in that street, repeated their objections to the obstruction and Burton N. Harrison, for the company, replied. Mr. Harrison said the poles had already been erected under a permit of the Electrical Subway Commission and contended that the injunction should be dissolved. The decision was reserved. SUITS WON BY AMERICAN OPERA EMPLOYES. Two of the suits against the American Opera Company by employee demanding back salaries resulted in verdicts for the plaintiffs in the City Court yesterday. Judge Ehrlich dithe plaintiffs in the City Court yesterday. Judge Ehrlich di-rected that judgment for $1,125 be entered in favor of William Purry, assistant stage manager, and for $380 in favor of Alice Richards. Eaton & Lowis, counsel for the defendants, insisted that suits could not be brought for constructive services that had never been rendered, and that the proper remedy was by an action for damages. The court held otherwise. In the similar suits by five ballet girls counsel for the defence were not ready and the cases were adjourned until May d. William W. Badger appeared for the plaintiffs in all these cases.

WHAT AN EXCHANGE MEMBER SAYS.

The Inman-Clews controversy, which resulted in Henry Clews withdrawing his application for membership in the Cotton Exchange, continued to be talked about by the members yesterday. As THE TRIBUNE published the first account of the trouble exclusively, those interested naturally looked to THE TRIBUNE for a continuation of members were seemingly more interested in the second chapter of the difficulty than they were in the cotton market. Mr. Clews's letter was cut from THE TRIBUNE and posted on the bulletin, and it was read, analyzed and freely commented upon. The general impression seemed to be that with so strong a defence as the letter con-tained, Mr. Clews ought not to have hesitated to appear before the Committee on Memberships, the majority of which were favorable to Mr. Clews because they believe in encouraging the Stock Exchange element to the Cot-

Sin: My strennous action against the State of Georgia has been based not only upon self-interest, but it has been fully as much a matter of duty. My large bonded interest furnished me facts which were not in possession of many people, and these facts dev loped the feature of duty in the case. The United States Government is a confederation of the States of the Union. Georgia is one of the largest and most important States and made a bad example for all the others. If repudiation in that State is to be accepted as being right, while the holders of her eight millions of bonds are crushed out, is her credit to remain untarnished notwithstanding the atrocity of the repudiation! If so, how easy it would be for all the other States to settle their obligations by the mere passage of an act of repudiation which takes but five minutes' time and costs no money! How, in that case, would the credit of the Nation stand in the eyes of the world when all the States which comprise the United States Government had resorted to such a method for paying debts!

I have placed no blame at the doors of the people of Georgia, for I have not dealt in personalities in the mat-

Sin: In justice to such members of the New-York Cotton Exchange as may feel an interest in the matter of the withdrawal of the application for membership of Henry Clews, it should be said that the opposition to his admission was not based upon the matter of the Georgia bonds, but had as a basis the transaction with the State of Alabama and the Fourth National Bank, New-York. In reference to this transaction, and to Mr. Clews's statement in The Tribune of this morning, that certain notes of the State of Alabama, amounting to $300,000, were by him lodged with the Fourth National Bank for collection, it should be stated that the Fourth National Bank for collection, it should be stated that the Fourth National Bank for collection, it should be stated that the Fourth National Bank for collection, it should be stated that the Fourth National Bank for collection, it should be stated that the Fourth National Bank for collection, it should be a stated that the Fourth National Bank; he also honds, as collateral security for their payment (without this fact being specified in the face of the note; he obtained money as stated, by pledging the notes, as collateral security, to the Fourth National Bank; he also hypothecated or sold the bonds, obtaining money on them, were it as Mr. Clews states, that the notes were onlyplaced with the Fourth National Bank for collection, is it not strange that the bank still holds them, and is anxious to get the money advanced collaterally upon them!

If this matter was explainable by Mr. Clews, there would seem to be no reason for his not appearing before the proper committee of the Exchange and explaining it, when no doubt the objections to his becoming a member would have been at once withdrawn.

The evidence showed that he had been implicitly trusted by the women with whom he transacted business and that the deed was signed by persons who supposed that they were signing an entirely dimerent paper. Garrett's lawyer made a plea for leniency, but Judge Gildersleeve said that he had shown the utimost heartlessness in his dealings with Mrs. Charpentier. pended by Surveyor Beattle upon charges was denied by the Surveyor yesterday. He stated that under the ruling of the Treasury Department on February 2, 1886, after his suspension of several inspectors, he had no right to suspend any subordin ate, but that he could remove him and then the person could be reinstated if after an investigation he should be proven innocent of the charge. The matter lies simply in the same condition as several days ago when the Tribune called attention to the fact that Surveyor Beattle had preferred charges against Mr. Wyatt for accepting notarial fees.

Mr. Wyatt is a son-in-law of John B. Haskins and is prominently identified with the Democratic party of Westchester County. He is also a Tammany man, while Surveyor Beattle is a member of the County Democracy. This is said by many to be the secret of Mr. Beattle's opposition to Mr. Wyatt. A Custom House official well acquainted with matters in general said yesterday:

There is a good deal in this Beattle-Wyatt row. Wyatt has too many stanch friends to suit Beattle, and the latter has been defeated in every more against him. Beattle went down to Washington recently on this matter, and now Wyatt and Haskins are there upon the invitation of Mr. Fairchild. Beattle has been under the impression from the first that there has been a strong combination against him engineered by Wyatt. First he took of the head of Deputy Surveyor Kibbe, a Republican, and appointed Overfield, a Democrat. Then he decapitated the latter, but was still impressed with the idea that there was a combine against him of Tammany men. He appointed Wyatt, and then in troduced instructions to keep up a thorough system of espicuage. This was at an extra expense of $40 day for the burd of the impression of wyatt upon a frivolous charge of illegal conduct.

Surveyor Beattle was inclined to be reticent yesterday with regard to bits action, seemingly not wishing to have any public reflection cast upon Mr. Wyatt. He admitted that Mr. Wyatt had been charged with Irregularity in CAPT. RICHARDSON OWNED THE BOGUS INGOTS The owner of the gold ingots deposited at the Assay Office a few days ago and found on examination to be bogus visited the Assay Office yesterday morning. It was Captain Ben Richardson, of Harlem, morning. It was Captain Ben Richardson, of Harlem, a famous California pioneer, who lives in an old house in One-hundred-and-sixteenth-st., near Thirdayac, and in late years has been distinguished principally as the owner of a coach which once belonged to washington. It has been his habit for many years to take part in great parades, seated in the antiquated venicle. His wealth, as well as the possession of the Washington coach, have made him an interesting feature on many occasions. The old man is frequently seen in Wall Street, and it is said that he is not averse, once in a while, to taking a "dyer" in the stock market. He is estimated to be worth several millions and, if common report may be believed, has a keen appreciation of the value of every dollar of his fortune.

Mr. Richardson did not think it worth his while, however, to take away the precious gold bars which he had brought a few days before to the Assay Office. He was convinced by Reiner Martin that they were comparatively worthless, and after one fond look at them he left the building without making known his wishes in regard to what may be placed among the many curiosities in his home. Mr. Richardson said in reply to persistent impuries that he had bought the breits for $1,000 from two men who pretended to be miners. The bricks were the product of a Western mine, the name and place of which the men were analous to keep secret until the value of the ore had been established. Little samples were bored out of the bricks, according to the usual rules of the game, and of course they were found on assay to be pure gold. After this careful examination the old "Forty-niner" became the owner of the bricks. It is believed that Captain Richardson spent much time yesterday in a fruitless hunt for the two Western miners, whose mine is still unknown and nameless. The bogus bricks were shown freely at the Assay Office yesterday. They are coated with the cheap bronzing preparation frequently applied to ironwork.

FRIDAY, April 22-P. M. To-day's stock market did not recover from yesterday's stermined and fierce attacks on values; but it was no orse than yesterday and generally ruled better in tone ad figures than yesterday's late prices, despite a contination of the efforts to depress values. Only in a few in-tances were prices recorded at any time during the day wer than yesterday's lowest. Conspicuous in that ass were Louisville and Nashville, Fort Worth and enver and New-York and New-England, which connues to be talked down by some of its prominent new reform "directors after, as they publicly announce, sey have sold out of the stock. New-York and Newingland, however, recovered so that it closed only is ower than last evening. Louisville and Nashville and Fort Worth and Denver were less fortunate and are exceptional in giving material declines from last evening's figures. Leaving out the three stocks named, a majority of the stocks, after small fluctuations, show some gains and the declines are covered by \(^1e^3\)4 per cent. Northwestern was specially strong, being influ-enced thereto by its report of earnings in March, show-ing gains over March, 1886, of $348,757, and over March, 1885, of $348,330. Union Pacific also worked strong and closed % higher than last evening, and Delaware, Lacka-wanna and Western gives a gain of ½ per cent. The dealings in Philadelphia and Reading were 42,500 shares smaller than yesterday. It opened off 's per cent at 45, touched yesterday's lowest figure—443,—and then soid as
